CURE IS MADE IN NEW YORK; GERMAN DENOUNCED AS 'FAKE'

MUCH CRITICISM HEARD COUNSELS FORBEARANCE

Dr. Broder Charges Inventor of Al-While Expressing Doubt as to Value of leged Cure with Being an Imposter and a Fraud.

New York, March & Dr. F. F. Four drops of the serum, which is obtained from a marine turtle, were injected into the stomach of three patients, a woman and two men. The demonstration was given by Dr. Friedmann at the People's Hospital before a clinic of forty prominent physicians. A number of the doctors who attended the clinic expressed strong disapproval of Dr. Friedmann's methods of handling the patients. Others denounced him for selecting only patients who were apparently only in the mildest stages of the disease or well on the road to recovery, while others felt that judgment should be withheld to await permanent results.

Dr. Friedmann removed the ban which

This was a good dead of a disappoint ment, not only to the poor patients, but also to the physicians present, who had bousd to see the tremedy tested upon as a wide a scale as possible and upon cases in all stages of the disease. This disappointment was the greater, because of the large majority of the cases rejected were either early or middle stage cases, in which the disease was steadily progressing or patient in advanced stages of the disease, whose only hore of recovery would rectainly be part, unless monthing could be done for them within a few weeks or months.

None of them, however, was in any sense in a desperate or immediate critical condition, and all but one of them would have been regarded as fair cases for hopeful open air or sanatorium treatment.

The cases accepted by Dr. Priedmann for treatment were two men of about thirty-dive or forty years of age, with pulmonary tuberculosis, and a young woman with bone tuberculosis of the the selected cases were taken upstairs to the operating room, and Dr. Friedmann produced two small brown glass wide-mouthed bottles, containing his famous wacoline, and two hypodermies syringes. The syringes were of the type generally used in this country ten or fitteen years ago, but which have now ben gerally abandoused on account of the difficulty in keeping them sterile. The doctor had great difficulty in getting the syringes to work properly, as the pistone had shrunk. He was offere and more modern syrings, but ting the syringes to work properly, as the pistone had shrunk. He was offered other and more modern syringes, but waved thou impatiently aside.

At last, after much manipulation, he succeeded in getting one of the syringes to work passably, and then announced that he was about to make an intravencus injection, to thrust the needle into a superficial voin and inject the remedy directly into the blood. The girl, with bone tuberculosis, who was his first patient, was so fat that the superficial veins were not readily visible. After changing from one arm to another, tieing bandages around the arm to make the veins swell and stand out, and two un unconstraint insertions of the needle, he would go on the contract of the needle, he would go on the contract of the needle, he would go on the contract of the needle where he was going to inject the remedy deeply into the muscles. He had consumed forty-five minutes in filling his defective syrings and failing to find a vein and effect an injection in the first case.

The treatment of the other two cases.

The treatment of the other two cases went more smoothly, as there was no vein to be looked for. But the syringes were still working badly, and in both cases so much of the fluid "flared" back of the platen that in the opinion of several of those who were watching the operation it would be impossible to tell within 20 per cent of just how much of the fluid had actually been injected into the patient's muscles.
